

Hello Lexington students and families,

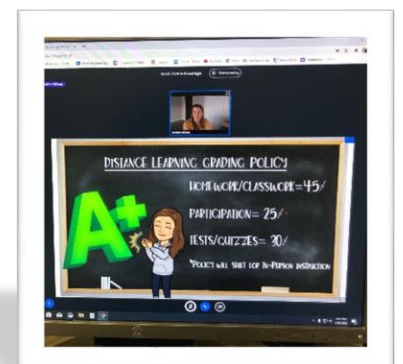

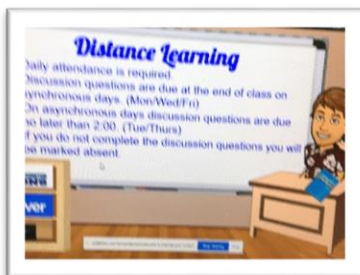

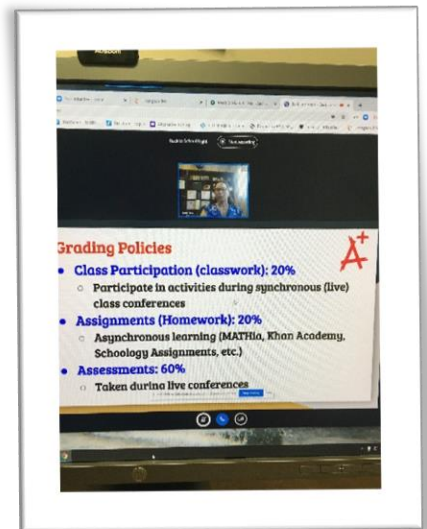

We had a great Back to School Night last Wednesday. It was definitely an unusual one this year with families and students participating from the comfort of their homes. This week we will be distributing textbooks for 8th graders and make-ups for 7th graders. We will also be hosting another Coffee with the Principal this Thursday focusing on Aeries support. Please see the following page for details.

As we settle into the routines of school, I want mention the importance of continuing to be engaged throughout the entire week, not just on the synchronous days – M,W,F. Setting up routines at home to continue being in engaged in school on Tuesdays and Thursdays is critical to maintaining a balance for the students. A balanced breakfast and routine for your morning wake-up is great way to start the day right. Students should be checking their teachers’ Schoology pages daily and looking into the material folders for the weekly assignments. Asynchronous engagement can be creative and look differently for each of the courses: Independent reading, exercising, writing, working on daily journals, creating slideshows, working in groups with other students, practicing instruments / singing, watching videos or creating videos, responding to questions, solving problems, assignments provided through google forms or other docs, doing labs,...

Continue to encourage your child to reach out to their teachers and friends (virtually) during this time to ask questions and get support. Now more than ever do we need to make sure that while we’re at home, we try and continue to provide a safe balance for our children and our own lives to the best of our ability.

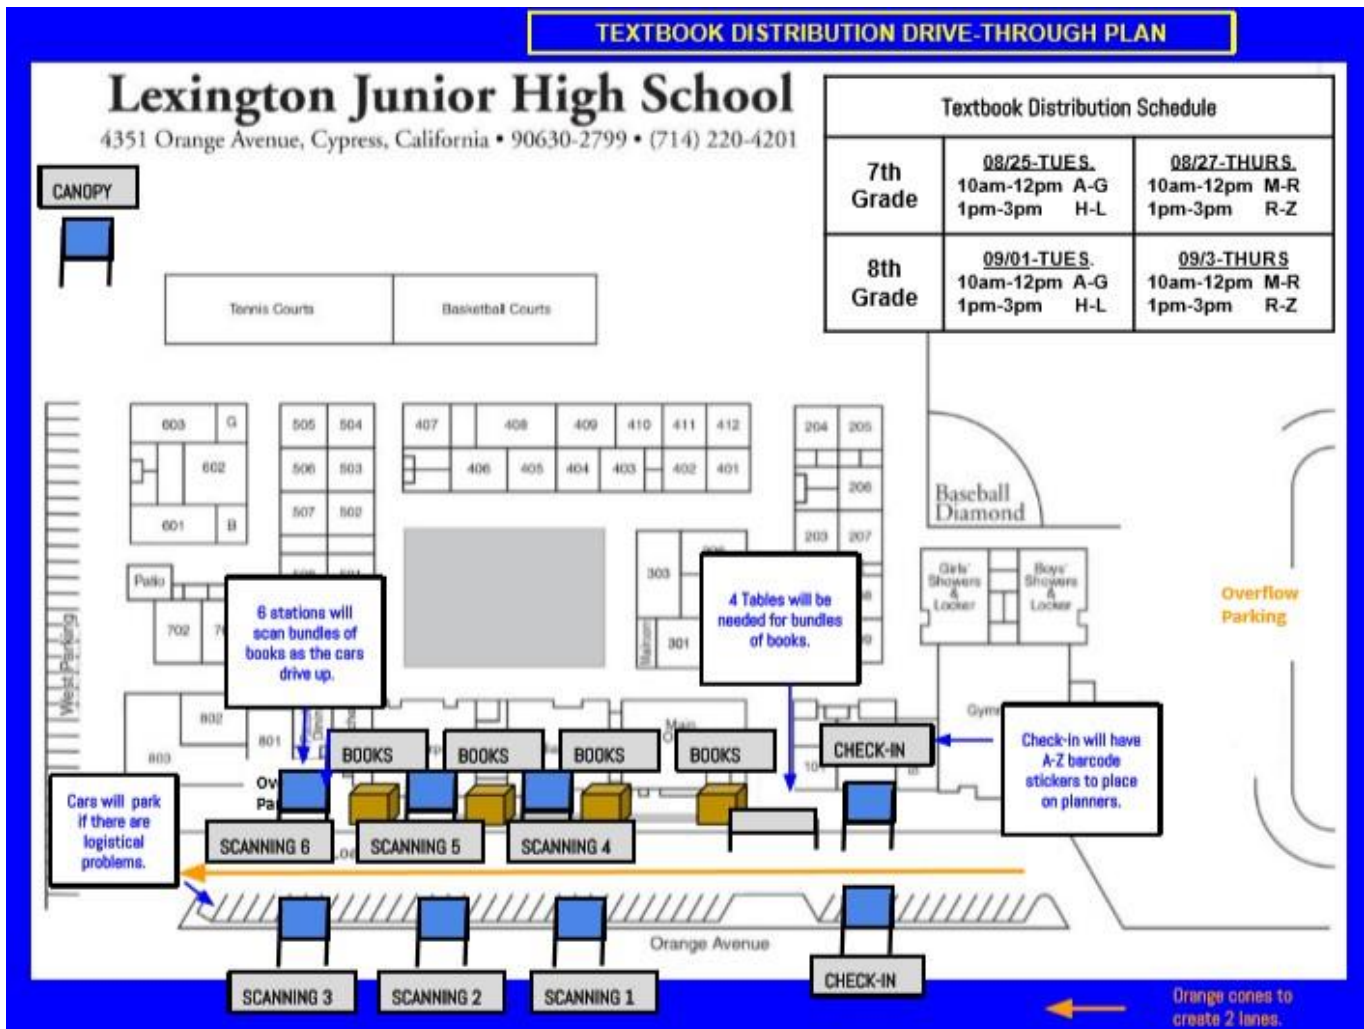

Have a great rest of the week,

Daniel Klatzker
